

In the Cemetery, Weston-super-Mare, a grave-stone will shortly be erected with the following inscription.

Here lie the remains of MARIA NEWMAN,
second daughter of the first Sir John Kennaway, Bart., Born Feb. 1801, Married Dec. 1835, she died in July 1876.

In early life she scorned pomp and finery, but sought after God inwardly.
With no superiority of intellect, yet by the force of love, by sweet piety, by tender compassion, by coming down to the lowly, by unselfishness and simplicity of life, by a constant sense of God's presence, by devout exercises private and social, she achieved much of Christian saintliness, and much of human happiness.

Warm and constant in friendship, she ever remembered the afflicted poor, though parted by time and distance.
She has left a large void in her husband's heart, who enjoyed the blessing of her love more than 40 years.

From God she came: to God she returns.

To W Lloyd Garrison Esq

My dear Sir

I owe you many thanks for kind sympathy. She for whose loss I mourn had not the high spirit & public zeal of your beloved one.

(Star differs from star in glory) - But she was unique in her own form of loveliness. I send you my epitaph over her. An old friend has just written to me to say, it is sober truth.

In haste Believe me,

with high esteem,

Francis W Newman
